

10 Questions for Your Next Video Call

A thoughtful mini date for long-distance couples

Choose three questions for a short call, or answer all ten when you have more time. Take turns. Listen without interrupting. Ask one gentle follow-up before moving on.

1. What is one small moment from this week you wish I could have shared with you?
2. When did you feel closest to me recently, even from far away?
3. What is one thing I can do this week that would help you feel supported?
4. What part of our next visit are you looking forward to most - and why?
5. What is something about your daily life that I may not fully understand yet?
6. What memory of us always makes you smile?
7. What is one new virtual date we would both genuinely enjoy?
8. When distance feels difficult, what kind of reassurance helps you most?
9. What are we building together in this season of our relationship?
10. What is one question you have wanted to ask me but never found the right moment for?

Want to keep the conversation going?

120 Questions for Long Distance Couples

A conversation guide for love, trust, memories, and staying close while apart.

Find the complete book on Amazon